OBJECTIVES

By the end of the program, participants will be able to:

- Demonstrate their knowledge of the history of freak shows and medicine.
- Discuss research methods, sources, and results related to the history of the body and medicine.
- Discuss and develop a wider critical perspective on the history of health and medicine that can help inform their perspectives on issues related to practice and relevant public debates.

PRESENTER

Dr. Jane Nickolas (Associate Professor, St. Jerome's, Waterloo) is a social and cultural historian with research interests that include the history of the body.
